

si qui ita se litteris abdiderunt ut nihil possint ex eis neque ad communem adferre fructum neque in aspectum lucemque proferre; me autem quid pudeat qui tot annos ita vivo, iudices, ut a nullius umquam me tempore aut commodo aut otium meum abstraxerit aut voluptas avocarit aut denique somnus retardarit? 13 Quare quis tandem me

152–154. si qui: “if anyone.” qui...abdiderunt: the antecedent is ceteros (qui = aliqui, see note on 1 above). ut...proferre: ANTICIPATED by ita. nihil: direct object of both adferre and proferre. ex eis: the antecedent is litteris. ad communem...fructum: “for the common benefit,” i.e., in the service of the state. in aspectum lucemque: HENDIADYS for in aspectum lucis.

154–157. me...quid pudeat qui...ita...ut: although the interrogative pronoun quid (“why”) should begin the clause, Cicero postpones it in order to mirror the structure of the preceding sentence, thereby emphasizing the ANTITHESIS between ceteros and me. qui...vivo: a conditional relative clause (B 312.2) that can be loosely understood as the subject of pudeat: “I who have lived my life” = “if I have lived my life” (cf. note on Ceteros pudeat above). ut: a result clause, ANTICIPATED by ita.

a nullius...commodo: “from the time (of need) or interest of no one,” i.e., from being ready to help anyone. me: direct object of abstraxerit, avocarit (= avocaverit), and retardarit (= retardaverit). aut...aut...aut...aut: the first connects tempore and commodo, the last three set in symmetry the three verbs of the ut clause and their subjects. otium: not simply “leisure,” but the commitment of one’s leisure time to cultural pursuits, study, etc. voluptas: i.e., the pursuit of social activities, idle entertainment. somnus: i.e., sloth.

© Bolchazy-Carducci Publishers, Inc.
www.BOLCHAZY.com

©2016 Bolchazy-Carducci Publishers, Inc. this sample was created for Texas Proclamation 2017 adoption preview not for distribution. This document will expire May 31, 2017.

158. reprehendo, reprehendere, reprehensi, reprehensus, to find fault with, rebuke; to mark with disapproval.
iure, (adv. < ius) according to the law; with good reason, rightly.
suscenseo, suscensere, suscensui, to be angry (with).
 ***ceterus, ~a, ~um, other, the rest or remaining.
159. obeo, obire, obivi (~ii), obitus, to take on, deal with, carry out.
festus, ~a, ~um, festal; on or suitable for festivals (i.e., public holidays).
 * dies, diei, m. or f., day.
ludus, ~i, m., (pl.) public games, festivals, holidays.
160. * celebro, ~are, ~avi, ~atus, to throng, attend in large numbers, honor with ceremonies.
requies, requietis, f., rest, repose, relaxation.
161. corpus, corporis, n., the body.
 * concedo, concedere, concessi, concessus, to concede, grant.
162. * tribuo, tribuere, tribui, tributus, to grant, bestow.
tempestivus, ~a, ~um, timely, occurring at the right time; (w. convivium), a dinner party starting at an early hour (i.e., an elaborate banquet).
convivium, ~i, n., a dinner party, banquet, feast.
alveolus, ~i, m., a gaming board.
163. pila, ~ae, f., a ball (for play or exercise, etc.).
-met, (encl. particle) attached for emphasis to pronouns.
recolo, recolare, recolui, recultus, to resume a practice, pursuit, etc.
164. sumo, sumere, sumpsi, sumptus, to undertake (an activity, etc.); to take on, assume (a duty, responsibility, etc.).
magis, (adv.) more (w. quam or abl. of comp.).
165. * quoque, (adv.) emphasizes the word it follows), also, even, too.
creresco, crescere, crevi, cretus, to grow; (w. ab or de), to arise from.
facultas, facultatis, f., ability, skill.
166. quantuscumque, ~acumque, ~umcumque, (rel. adj.) of whatever size; however great (or small).
 * periculum, ~i, n., danger, hazard; (leg. usu. pl.) legal liabilities; the risks or hazards of litigation.

reprehendat, aut quis mihi iure suscenseat, si, quantum ceteris ad suas res obeundas, quantum ad festos dies ludorum celebrandos, quantum ad alias voluptates et ad ipsam requiem animi et corporis conceditur temporum, quantum alii tribuunt tempestivis conviviis, quantum denique alveolo, quantum pilae, tantum mihi egomet ad haec studia recolenda sumpsero? Atque id eo mihi concedendum est magis quod

165 ex his studiis haec quoque crescit oratio et facultas quae, quantacumque est in me, numquam amicorum periculis

157–164. reprehendat...suscenseat: potential subjunctives in the APODOSIS of a present general (“should-would”) condition, B 280.2. si...sumpsero: the PROTASIS of the condition BRACKETS an extended quantum...tantum correlative construction continuing the ANTITHESIS of ceteros :: me. The quantum...tantum correlative construction contains two TRICOLA whose six members are introduced by the ANAPHORA of quantum.

⇒ First TRICOLON (158–161): “as much time as is devoted by others for...” In each clause quantum is the subject. ceteris: dative of agent with conceditur, B 189. ad...obeundas: “for the purpose of attending to their own affairs.” ad...celebrandos: “for the purpose of attending festivals.” ad...voluptates et...corporis: “to other idle distractions and the relaxation of mind and body” (note the shift in construction from ad + gerundive, expressing purpose, to ad + accusative, a simple prepositional phrase). requiem: (= quietem). conceditur: must be supplied in the first two quantum clauses. temporum: partitive genitive, construe also with each preceding quantum (note: its placement at the end of the first TRICOLON and the beginning of the second indicates that it also modifies each quantum of the second TRICOLON).

⇒ Second TRICOLON (161–163): “as much time as some give to...” Cicero shifts to an active construction where each quantum functions as the direct object of its clause. alii tribuunt: the subject and verb of all three quantum clauses. conviviis...alveolo...pilae: dative indirect objects of tribuunt.

163–164. tantum...sumpsero: the resolution of the correlative construction, “that much (time) I myself apply to the cultivation of these pursuits.” mihi egomet: Cicero uses both the dative (indirect object) and nominative of the personal pronoun (with the -met enclitic for emphasis) to correspond to ceteris and alii above. id: the antecedent is the preceding tantum clause. eo...magis: “by so much the more” (eo = ablative of degree of difference with the comparative adverb magis), B 223. quod: causal, ANTICIPATED by eo...magis.

165–166. haec: the singular pronoun introduces a compound subject (oratio et facultas) and ANTICIPATES the following quae clause. oratio et facultas: HENDIADYS for orationis facultas, “capacity for public speaking.” periculis: ablative with defuit; periculis refers here to legal entanglements (or in that sense, “hazards” in which his friends became involved—see note on 34–36 above).