ORAL EXERCISE 2

This exercise may be used anytime after wishes have been presented.

The teacher will address individual students with invented statements about each student (assumed to be true in this game). Each student will reply, but in the form of a wish related to the future, the present, or the past. If the student has not done something, s/he needs to express a wish that s/he might have done it; if the student is not doing something, s/he needs to express the wish that she was doing it instead; if the student will possibly do something, s/he needs to express a wish that s/he may do it.
